

African Doll

This doll was found in a sand bank of the upper Ashley River. The doll was preserved at the Lasch Conservation Laboratory at the former naval base in North Charleston. Information derived from analysis was sent to the Smithsonian Institution to try to determine its origin. It is clearly a wooden African figure, likely from slavery days; its purpose is unknown.